

Student Health Service: more than place to be sick

by Pattie Cinelli

College, high school and elementary school students at Gallaudet have available to them one of the most comprehensive college health services in the area, and it's free.

The Peter J. Fine Student Health Services (SHS) serves both College and high school students on a daily basis. Gallaudet employees can use the facility for emergency treatment or for blood pressure checks. The SHS is in operation 24 hours a day while school is in session with a registered nurse or physician's assistant on duty and a physician on call at all times. Kendall students have use of the facility on a limited basis. Most services are paid for by the school or insurance provided by the school.

One of two internists and a general practitioner, Dr. S. Easterling, Dr. Eugene Zimmerman and Dr. Anthony Tapara, are at SHS from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. "Students can see a doctor anytime they want," said John Moss, Gallaudet's first physician's assistant. A physician's assistant is a paramedical professional who goes to a special school for further medical training. During the week there is a walk-in clinic from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and in the afternoons students can see doctors by appointment.

Much of the work done at SHS is preventive in nature. "One of the most time-consuming and important things we do here is getting people to understand how medicine works. We just don't treat a student, we provide him or her with health information," explained Moss. SHS staff works closely with the cafeteria dietician and students who request a weight control program. Information is offered on birth control. Holly Goodling, who is one of the three nurse practitioners among the 10 permanent RNs on SHS staff, has held several informal classes on birth control in the MSSD dorms which covered anatomy and the birth process through conception. She also conducted a drug seminar in the dorms and recently coordinated a health fair in the MSSD lobby.

The SHS also arranges for volunteer interpreters to attend health fairs in the community, and representatives from the facility regularly meet with the Student Body Government to get feedback about relations between students and the infirmary.

In 1977 SHS moved into its new facility in MSSD. Since that time it has experienced tremendous growth. Because of a population surge in MSSD, SHS recently was divided into two areas during the day, one side serving MSSD students and the other primarily for College students. Figures show that during February and March SHS saw approximately 85 people per day.

Even though MSSD and Gallaudet students receive the same treatment and see the same doctors and nurses, the method for administering the treatment often can be different. Staff nurse Phyllis Tucci who works with high school students said that because MSSD is acting 'in loco parentis' (acting as a substitute for parents), much more paperwork is involved in treating a high school student. She works very closely with MSSD audiologists, teachers and

by Pattie Cinelli

Ten MSSD juniors and seniors spent one week last month getting a first-hand look at the people, policies and processes that make up the U.S. government.

It was MSSD's sixth year of participation in the "Close Up" government studies program which is designed to give both hearing and hearing impaired high school students from all over the country a chance to talk with Members of Congress, administrators, lobbyists, ambassadors and political newsmakers about what they do and where they stand on national issues.

Students from Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kentucky, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and New York took part in the intensive week-long activities with MSSD. "One of the things I enjoyed best about 'Close Up' is that hearing and deaf people got together and learned about each other. I made many new friends from all over the country," said Sharon Rutherford, an MSSD student. The students stayed at the Quality Inn Pentagon City during the week and roomed with hearing students.

The "Close Up" schedule was packed full of events, with days beginning at 8:30 a.m. and not ending until 11 p.m. Ed Corbett, director of the National Academy at Gallaudet, was invited for the second time to give the keynote address kicking off the week's events. "Close Up" supplied students and teachers with pre-seminar briefings by staff members and daily handouts outlining the backgrounds and viewpoints of the day's speakers and differing views on major issues being debated. Students and teachers got together at night to discuss the day's happenings.

Marilyn Farmer, MSSD Social Studies teacher who stayed with the students during the week, said that even though she's lived in the Washington Metropolitan Area for many years, during the week she visited places she never had been before and learned a lot from the speakers and seminars. "When I walked past Senator Ted Kennedy in the hall of the Capitol I acted like a kid myself," said Farmer. She was especially proud of two of her students, Brent Jalley and Mike Tansky, who at the banquet held the last evening of the week volunteered to ex-temporaneously role play dialog between President Ronald Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

Farmer also said many concepts presented in lectures and seminars were already taught to MSSD students in American Government class. However, one concept that students said became clear to them through a "Close Up" seminar was the role of a lobbyist.

In addition to learning how government works, MSSD students said they learned a lot about the city's history. For example, when touring the city one student said he never realized that carved on the back of Abraham Lincoln's head at the Memorial is the fact of Robert E. Lee. Many deaf students were interested in how the president's budget cuts will affect benefits for handicapped people.

"Close Up" provides each school with two scholarships, one for a low income student and the other for a teacher. It costs about $400 per student. MSSD provided half of the money and students, with the help of Social Studies teacher Mike Rosenbaum, raised the other half. The program is administered by the non-profit, non-partisan Close Up Foundation, funded through a partnership of public and private sources.

Library Bits & Pieces

Library offers equipment delivery service

by Tom Harrington

Have you ever wanted to use audiovisual equipment in your classroom, workshop or seminar, but held back because you didn't know how to use it, didn't want to have to lug it around or are all thumbs? The Library's Individualized Learning Service has now removed those excuses. ILS has a new service in which it will, upon request, deliver, set up, operate if necessary and take down audiovisual equipment in classrooms and other College meeting spaces (but not in KDES and MSSD, which have their own audiovisual services). All you provide is the film, slides, transparencies or whatever other audiovisual medium you want to use. ILS will provide the rest, even the operator if you desire.

The telephone numbers for this service are x5098 (voice) and x5579 (TDD). It is located in the Learning Center, LE20. To help us help you most efficiently, we ask that you give us at least 24 hours notice weekdays and at least 72 hours notice for weekend requests. Also help us by avoiding having your meetings in the upper reaches of College Hall, Fowler Hall and other building lacking elevators. Such meetings should be relocated to the Learning Center or other readily accessible building if at all possible. You should also be aware that ILS cannot accept responsibility for setting up or operating audiovisual equipment that does not belong to it, such as a department's own film projector or video players.

Deaf people are visually-oriented people, and require visually-oriented presentations. Let Individualized Learning Services help you put the visual in your presentation.

Temperature restrictions approved

by Jim Hull

The College administration on March 26, 1981 approved 78°F as the minimum temperature for air conditioning for the 1981 season, and 68° maximum heating temperature for 1981-1982 heating season. You will note that the air conditioning temperature is the same as the previous two summers, but that the maximum heating limit has been increased.

Your personal cooperation in observing these limits is requested for two reasons. One of these is a moral duty to conserve energy used to produce power and steam. The second reason is to keep our power and fuel cost within budgetary limits.

The mandatory imposition of time-of-use measurement and billing for electrical power last year has increased our cost of this service approximately $40,000 a month during the summer. The cost of fuel for heating and hot water jumped by more than 30 cents a gallon between October last year and this past February. When you consider that on our coldest days we burn over 7,000 gallons of oil in a 24 hour period, the magnitude of the expense becomes apparent. (That's about $2100 a day—more than our cost last year).

Microfilm indexes

The Gallaudet College Library has on loan for the next month three ROM Microfilm Indexes. Each index consists of a reel of 16mm COM (Computer Output Microfilm) which is locked in a special ROM COM terminal. Complete easy to follow instructions appear on the front of each machine. Each index is updated monthly with a completely new reel of microfilm, so there are no supplements. The three new indexes are:

Business Index: Comprehensive coverage of over 325 business periodicals, The Wall Street Journal, Barrons, the financial section of the New York Times, business information from more than 1,000 general and legal periodicals, and cataloging information of business books and reports from the Library of Congress MARC database. Coverage is from January, 1979 to date.

Magazine Index: Cover-to-cover indexing of over 370 popular U.S. periodicals. Includes all articles, news product evaluations, editorials on major issues, short stories, poetry, recipes, reviews and biographical pieces. Coverage is of all magazines indexed in the Reader's Guide plus many others. Cumulative coverage is from January, 1977 to date.

National Newspaper Index: Complete coverage of the three most referenced U.S. newspapers—The Christian Science Monitor, The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal. All articles in the three newspapers, including product evaluations and reviews of books, movies, drama, TV, records and restaurants are indexed. It covers indexing from Jan. 1, 1979 to the present.

Come by the Library and try out these new indexes. Let us know what you think and don't forget to sign the Statistics Sheet!

mation when you start thinking of being "too hot" or "too cold". Of course, Maintenance & Operations will adjust the extremes to get these temperatures within the limits of the equipment or building.

Theatre Festival offers free tickets

Two plays this week at the American College Theatre Festival, being held at the Kennedy Center's Terrace Theatre, will be interpreted.

Twenty complimentary tickets are available for hearing impaired people, on a first-call, first-served basis. You can call Ms. Kathy Wade, 254-7190, for tickets.

Scheduled for Wednesday, April 15, at 7:30 p.m. is "Story Theatre," performed by St. Michael's College, Winooski, VT. It's improvisational stories from Aesop's Fables and the Grimm Brothers.

Lucille H. Pendell, who served as Gallaudet College librarian for 25 years, died on Sunday, April 5. She was 79. Mrs. Pendell retired as head librarian at Gallaudet in 1972. She became librarian of the College in 1947 and while at Gallaudet earned a degree in Library Science from Catholic University. In addition to her position as College librarian, Mrs. Pendell served as associate professor of Library Science and chairperson of the Department of Library Science.

Susan Lyon has been appointed as director of the Student Union. She previously served as associate director and acting director of SU. As director, Lyon will be responsible for developing and coordinating cultural, recreational and educational activities and leadership training programs for students. Her office is presently located on the second floor of the College Dining Hall and will relocate soon to the renovated SUB.

With the resignation of Holly Hargis as Personnel administrator, the Personnel Office has been reorganized. David Curtis has been promoted to the position of coordinator of Compensation and Benefits. The position of supervisor of Employment Services will be filled by Denise Sullivan, who is transferring to the staff from MSSD. Sullivan will handle most exempt recruitment and interviewing while JoAnne Jones will be the contact for non-exempt position.

President's Office Notes

by Frances B. Merrill

Professor Samuel L. Porter was one of the early faculty members of Gallaudet College who made a tremendous contribution to academic life on Kendall Green during his many years of service. He arrived here in 1866 and taught for 18 years. Following that, he acted as librarian until his retirement. Apparently, he gave 35 years of service to the College.

Prior to coming to Gallaudet College, he had taught deaf students for 20 years in Connecticut and in New York.

He was the brother of Professor Noah Porter of Yale who later became the president of Yale University. The sisters of Samuel and Noah founded Miss Porter's School for Girls in Farmington, CT. Thus, the Porters were a family of educators, a family that made many fine contributions to the education of young people for decades.

Gallaudet College is fortunate to have a very fine picture of Samuel L. Porter. It appears to be a tinted photograph of the kind that was done so much in the early part of the 20th century. This picture now hangs in the dining room of the Edward Miner Gallaudet Residence opposite the oil painting of Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, for whom Gallaudet College was named. The picture has been hung between a pair of Victorian sconces, hand carved American eagles that are recent gifts to Gallaudet College from Mr. Leonard Ball. Both the picture and the sconces do much to reinstate the dining room of the Edward Miner Gallaudet Residence as an authentic Victorian home.

As you visit the Edward Miner Gallaudet Residence, we hope you will find it increasingly interesting from an historical point of view and a cordial and friendly place to visit.

Letters

Since it is not possible for me to personally thank everyone for the cards, phone calls, prayers, flowers and gifts sent to Leon, I am taking this means to tell all of you how very much we appreciate your thoughtfulness. Without the prayers sent heavenward, I do not believe Leon would have pulled through! He is well on the road to recovery now and has suffered no permanent damage whatsoever. He will have to learn to compensate for damaged cells on the left side of his cerebellum which control balance, but will be "as good as new" by the end of May.

I would especially like to thank the sender of "Gladys Gallaudet" who neglected to sign the card. This was a very clever floral poodle made from white chrysanthemums, delivered by Chambers Florists.

"Horty" Auerbach (for Leon)

We were so delighted to learn that Mr. Gary Wormley was selected as Driver of the Month. We want to add that he is wonderful with Primary Department children and always gives his time to play with them when he isn't driving. The children love him!

Karate, kung fu demonstration held

by Twila Cavey

A karate and kung fu demonstration entranced about 50 MSSD students the evening of April 2 in the school's front lobby. Lee Young, a former employee at the MSSD tv studio and a student of both karate and kung fu, arranged for the two groups to perform while he interpreted. Young had arranged a similar activity with the kung fu group last year which is on videotape in the MSSD Learning Resources Center.

The karate group held students spellbound with their high kicks, sword display and breaking in half one-inch-thick boards and concrete blocks. The teacher even lay on a bed of nails while his wife jumped up and down on his stomach. Every second was action-filled.

Next the kung fu group performed, complete with a drum and other instruments for background music. The first performance was a dance done by 12 men in a colorful lion costume. The mythology behind the dance was explained to the students. Another man performed brandishing two swords.

More information concerning the style, mythology and instruments can be obtained from Eugene Mackie, a teacher at the Jon Ga Kung Fu Association. A videotape of this program will soon be available at the MSSD LRC.

A karate expert prepares to break in half this concrete block at a demonstration held at MSSD.

counselors. In many cases, parents are also contacted.

Both College and high school seniors are given complete physical examinations at no charge. Physicals are also provided for those participating in a varsity sport. High school freshman are given eye and dental screening and a physical if a recent examination is not on record. In addition, each new Gallaudet and MSSD student is interviewed by a staff member and familiarized with services the facility provides.

In addition to regular services (a walk-in clinic in the mornings and appointments with doctors in the afternoons), a consultant gynecologist, otolaryngologist, dermatologist, psychiatrist, ophthalmologist and orthopedist see students by referral. MSSD students recently acquired the services of a pediatrician, Dr. Ilnez Hinds, and a dentist. Students can also be referred to off-campus doctors and accompanied by staff members. Two staff nurses, Tucci and Jane Binzen, are registered interpreters.

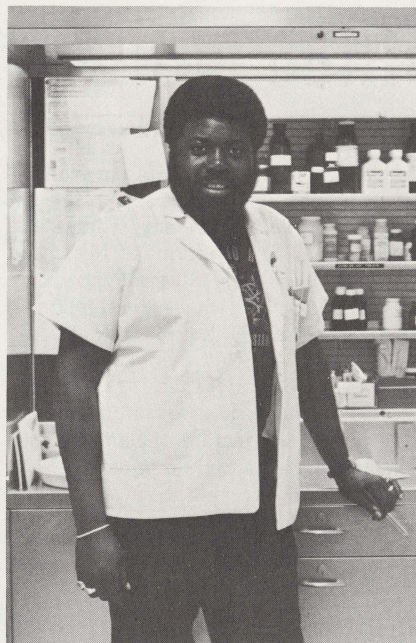

Among the 10 permanent registered nurses on the staff, three are nurse practitioners, having additional training which allows them to accept more responsibility. According to Dorothy Stiles, administrative nurse, the Student Health Services staff exercises more independent decisions than many RNs working in other places. Several part-time nurses are also on the staff, as well as three licensed practical nurses and clerical help. RN Connie Petit, who is also a nurse practitioner and holds a masters degree, has been hired by MSSD as its nurse and liaison between MSSD and the Health Service.

"Our staff has extraordinary skills," said Moss, himself a former X-ray technician who specializes in orthopedic problems. RN Vivian Barron has masters degree in Counseling and handles much of the facility's mental health coordination. Natalie Powell, a nurse practitioner, works closely with the consulting ophthalmologist. Regina Niedzwiecki's specialty is ear, nose and throat problems.

Kendall's school health program serves students, faculty and staff and is coordinated by two full-time nurses, Jan Kemper and Brenda Thaxton. The program has three major areas of concern: Health Appraisal, Health Services and Health Education. The nurses work with administrators and faculty responsible for new students. Kemper and Thaxton interview parents to obtain current medical histories and provide initial health assessments of incoming students. Once a student begins school he or she receives vision and dental screenings, on-going general health appraisals, TB and scoliosis screenings and monitoring of special medical needs as identified by a physician, dentist, physical therapist or other health professionals.

Kendall has several consulting doctors on staff who evaluate and prescribe treatment when it is needed by students. There is an ear, nose and throat specialist, an ophthalmologist who uses SHS equipment, an orthopedic specialist and two psychiatrists. According to Kemper, plans are now being made to add a dentist to the staff in September 1981.

John Moss is Gallaudet's first physician's assistant.

Service with a smile

If you still think you need to call the "Work Control Center" for requests for services from Maintenance and Operations, you're a bit behind the times. The name has been changed to "Service Center" to better reflect the attitude employees are trying to bring to their jobs—"service with a smile."

A primary reason the name was changed is that the Center does not "control" any work that comes through the office and does not actually schedule the work. Their primary function to the Gallaudet community is service. And because all contact with the Service Center comes through the telephone or TDD, the Center must work twice as hard to show a "smile" in their voices or fingers.

How are requests for service handled? At the time of a request, Service Center coordinators try to get as much detailed information as possible from the caller. (Remember, Center employees probably don't know what an area looks like, so small details may make a difference in properly completing an order.) They then assign the request to the appropriate supervisor. At this point, the Service Center is out of "control" of how or when an order will be completed.

Under College policy, the Service Center has seven days to complete any written request, except in the case of an emergency. If that occurs, written notification and an approximate date of when the work will be scheduled will be given. This written notification will come directly from the appropriate supervisor.

Approximately 80% of all preventive maintenance work is routinely scheduled on a computer basis, and the Service Center receives these printed work orders on a weekly basis. The information is used as a tool to prevent certain problems before they occur. Work orders are constantly being added to this system in the hope of reducing the number of incoming calls that come through the Service Center office. All requests should come through the Service Center to enable orders to be processed correctly and promptly.

Anyone is welcome to call or drop by the Service Center between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. The Center is located on the third floor of the Central Utilities Building. Phone numbers are x5200 voice and x5203 TDD.

Sports update

The women's softball team started the season on a winning note, defeating U. of D.C. 15 to 9. Their next outing against Notre Dame was a disaster—losing 22 to 0—and their third game of the season against Prince George's Community College wasn't much better, with Gallaudet getting shellacked 12 to 1. Record as of March 26 is 1 - 2.

Women's tennis opened their season by losing to Trinity but in their next three matches they defeated PGCC, Marymount and Notre Dame. Record as of April 2 is 3 wins and 1 loss.

Men's baseball opened the season with a double-header against Washington Bible and came away with a split. The Bison also split a double-header against Charles Community College and lost to Washington College last week. Season's record to date is 2 wins and 3 losses.
